

THE AKRON DEMOCRAT

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 27, 1901.

Texas is producing so much oil that there is a scarcity of tank cars for its transportation.

A news dispatch from Kentucky announces that that state is preparing to organize a bar association. Better late than never.

The Ohio building at the Pan-American Exposition, which cost the State $25,000, has been sold for $450. The advertising the State got from the building was well worth the cost.

Some of the Northwestern States are trying to outdo Texas in their methods of dealing with the trusts. The Ohio plan of regulating the combines is very satisfactory to the trusts.

According to Former Governor Hogg, of Texas, Richard Croker is "a noble, Christian, honest, upright gentleman; that's what he is!" All of which goes to prove that there is more than one gusher in Texas.

The Brooklyn Eagle declares that "there is no more interesting man than Governor Odell in these times." A certain resident of the White House, also hailing from New York, might except to this conclusion.

Mayor Hart, of Boston, has been nominated seven times for the office he now holds. This is not up to record of some of Akron's standing candidates, who have been nominated three times seven times for offices they have never held.

Rev. Dr. James E. Mason, the colored orator from Livingston College and Industrial school at Salisbury, N. C., is lecturing throughout New England upon the subject, "In Darkest America, and the Way Out." In the course of his remarks, Rev. Mason mentions various statistics showing the progress already made by his race. Today the negroes own real estate which combined covers a wider area than the State of Connecticut, and the value of their property is more than $725,000,000. There are among them over 2,000 teachers and 400 authors. Tanner, the painter, and Dunbar, the poet, are two products which show what the race can accomplish. He says that the same forces that have lifted the Anglo-Saxon from the slave marts of Rome will enable the negroes also to rise. They are now simply two or three centuries behind in rights and privileges. Rev. Dr. Mason's conclusion is that "the negro by inward resolution and extreme irrepressibility must solve his own problem."

GLAD OF THE FILIPINO APPEAL.

(From the Boston Record.)

The Filipino appeal to President Roosevelt put in the most compact and eloquent compass is a plea for an adequate assurance of some form of ultimate national life. It is a plea which the Filipinos have the right to make from every public assurance the United States has given them since we entered the Philippine Islands. We are glad they have made it. It is put strongly and forcefully. It deserves attention. Whatever happens, one strong, eloquent and moving voice will be lifted at Washington in its support—the voice of our beloved senior Senator. President Roosevelt cannot refuse to listen to it.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE SENATE.

(From the Philadelphia Telegraph.)

The place-hunters and office-brokers are gathering at Washington in view of the coming meeting of Congress. These political parasites have not troubled President Roosevelt very much so far, because they have not dared to approach personally, and

HOPEFUL VIEW

The hopeful view consumptives take of their own cases is strongly in their favor. Each year is showing a larger percentage of cures.

One of the best reasons for good hope is the record of Scott's Emulsion as a medicine for consumptives. So long as the system is strong enough to use medicine of any kind it can use Scott's Emulsion.

The reason for its helpfulness in this disease is because of its long tolerance by the patient; one does not tire of it as quickly as other medicines and that is where the great benefit comes.

their chief reliance as intermediaries is not yet available. But when all the members of the Senate are on the scene, they will present their claims to consideration, and if there is not a radical change in the present methods there will be trouble. That calamity is freely predicted by close observers of passing events at the National Capitol.

The honorable Senators, it is plainly threatened, will take their stand on the constitutional provision which declares that the President shall exercise his appointing power "by and with the advice and consent of the Senate." The bearing of this restriction upon the President's powers lies in the application of it, and that, in turn, rests on the interpretation put upon the phrase. For many years it has been the custom so to interpret the provision as to constitute the Senators from the State concerned in a Presidential appointment as the Senate itself; the advice and consent of the two Representatives of a State in the upper branch of Congress having been given to the executive by the demand for the appointment of a particular person to an actual or impending vacancy, the part of the President in the matter is very much simplified, being reduced to the purely ministerial act of sending the name to the advisory and consenting body, where the "courtesy of the Senate" will do the rest.

President Garfield, at the very beginning of his brief official career, took the liberty of putting a different interpretation upon the constitutional provision, insisting that the organic law of the land meant that it was the Senate as a whole which was to act in the advisory and consenting capacity, on the initiative of the executive. A bitter struggle was thus inaugurated, the first step taken by the two Senators especially aggrieved being their instant resignation. The possible outcome of the contention was left to speculation by the bullet of Gaiter, and a whole score of years has passed before it has risen again.

But next month it will, from present indications, be in full swing again, and this time it is destined to be fought out to a conclusion. One splendid battle for a formal opening of the little royal between the President and the office-brokers of the Senate has been missed by the quiet acceptance of Mr. Roosevelt's refusal to reappoint Collector Bidwell, of New York, and the selection of a man of his own choice for the succession. The Philadelphia postoffice has been disposed of with equal ease and even less friction, but it is to be feared that the exception and not the rule has been illustrated by these two cases. Aside from all other considerations, it will be well worth the while of the great mass of the American people, who are not given to office-seeking and office-broking, to watch the impending contests. There is a strong man, fully conscious and equally proud of his strength, on one side, and on the other the whole army of office-holders and office-hunters, with the Senate at its head.

Otherwise.

No holiday for the druggists.

Weather man deserves a medal.

Gas Rublin is thankful it was no worse.

A little work for charity's cause will surely have its reward.

Three cheers for the pious old settlers who invented the custom!

Judge Anderson is thankful that his banquet plan worked out so well.

Maybe somebody will send the Wadsworth Banner man a turkey.

"Charlie" Honadle is thankful that the rush is being taken care of so well.

Chief Durkin is thankful those charges against him were only a joke.

Sheriff Kelly is thankful that he has still more than a year to remain in office.

Gen. Dick hopes the country editors of the district will be thankful for those garden seeds.

Fire Chief John Mertz is thankful for his elevation and will wait for his pay along with the others.

Manager Labadie of the Western Union, is thankful that he is getting the office into good running order.

Hon. Geo. W. Crouse has grounds for Thanksgiving in his being about the youngest "old" man in the city.

The boys at the Antlers are thankful for their new home and the exceptionally bright prospects for an extraordinary dinner.

All Akron should be thankful for the Mary Day Nursery, the City hospital and other like institutions and not forget their first claims upon all good citizens.

The high-priced city dog is now getting great exercise, dodging the attacks of his less pretentious brother on the farm. There is no sight so productive of ecstasy to the farmer boy as that of Towser or Bounce bringing Rex or Duke through the corn fields at a one-minute gait.

Farmers are now learning to appreciate the situation in which their forefathers struggled. While the farmers at work then were pestered and made afraid by Indians, the farmer of today is obliged to stay in the house through fear of city hunters. He is filled with either fear or bird shot when away from shelter.

Now that the meeting of Congress is only a few days removed, there seems to be a letting down of the demands in certain quarters for revision of the tariff. Even that ardent reformer, Mr. Carnegie, whose millions were made by taxation of his neighbors, isn't so philanthropic in regard to tariff reform as he was a few months since.

"No one in the world," President Roosevelt said to a friend, so the story goes, "has received so much advice as I in the past month—and most of it has been bad."

He probably has not so great a lead as he imagines over the average human being in the quantity of advice received. Some people spend a lot of time in giving advice. Certainly every advice-receiver in the world will echo his statement that "most of it has been bad."

If a man has had judgment he will follow bad advice, and it does not matter whether it is his own or some one else's bad advice. If he has good judgment the more points of view there are presented to him the better founded is the course of action which he finally adopts.

It is not wise to despise bad advice. It at least teaches one what not to do. Exchange.

To advertise this sale and get the people to attend we shall give to those who come to the sale the beautiful line of silverware valued at $500 now on exhibition in the window of WOOLSEY & BLASER, DRUGGISTS, TRACY BLOCK, BARBERTON, O. You do not have to buy a house to get a present, but you must be at the sale promptly at the opening.

These houses are all near the car line and within a few minutes' walk of the largest manufacturing plant in Barberton. They are also in the most rapidly growing part of the city, so that they are bound to advance in value. The very easy terms we give make it possible for every able-bodied man in Barberton to buy one of these houses and pay for it, as it will not cost a cent more than to pay rent.

Ask Yourself These Questions,

How long have I been paying rent? How much money have I wasted in this way? What have I got to show for it? Why can't I own my own home and be as well off as my neighbor? Why can't I make the start now? If I do not what shall I do when old age overtakes me? Where is the best place to buy a home and who will give me best terms on it? Then consider that Barberton is growing very rapidly, that it will soon be a large city, and that as building goes on in this locality each of these houses will advance in value from $200 to $300 every year for the next ten years and you will then see that this is the opportunity of a life time.

Houses have been vacated for sale. Immediate possession given.

Bound Over to the Grand Jury.

Verne Rogers Seems Indifferent to His Fate.

Verne Rogers, who is charged with having shot and killed Margaret D. Hallen, formerly of Akron, at No. 183 Hamilton st., Cleveland, on October 19, was given a preliminary hearing in Police Court in Cleveland before Judge Fiedler Tuesday. Jacob A. J. White, who lives in the house, where the murder occurred, testified that he saw the girl fall down stairs and out into the yard and that four shots were fired by Rogers. Patrolman Conway testified that the stairs and hallway floor were covered with blood from the wounds received by the murdered girl. Attorneys W. W. and Lee Elliott appeared in court in behalf of Rogers. Rogers sat in the court room during the trial and looked straight ahead of him. He did not seem to be particularly interested in the case. Judge Fiedler bound him over to the Grand Jury. No bail was fixed.

No woman would hesitate a moment to have a physical deformity righted. Few women are lame and blind, but a majority of women to-day are crippled physically and mentally by female suffering. Irregular menses are sapping their lives and weakening their vitality. Bearing down pains, leucorrhoea and pains in the head, back, neck and limbs are disabling them so effectually that few women are found sufficient for all the demands of life. It is to these sufferers that
